President Trump denounced his Democratic accusers during a rally on Wednesday in Battle Creek, Mich. “There’s no crime,” he said.

By NICHOLAS FANDOS and MICHAEL D. SHEAR
WASHINGTON — The House passed articles of impeachment on Wednesday, setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of President Donald J. Trump, the third Democrat to be charged with committing high crimes and misdemeanors.

The impeachment votes set the stage for a third trial in American history, forcing the chamber to decide whether to convict and remove the nation’s most unpredictable president or transfer to the Senate for further investigation, which will have final say — 10 days before Ms. Pelosi said she might wait to send the articles of impeachment to the Senate.

The articles accusing Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress” were passed 230 to 197, with Speaker Nancy Pelosi gaveling the vote to the lower chamber. Democrats voted solidly in favor, but most Republicans voted against.

In W ashington, the Administration's Feeling Real

WASHINGTON — The House voted Wednesday to impeach President Donald J. Trump on two counts: abuse of power and obstruction of Congress.

The vote was 230 to 197, with Speaker Nancy Pelosi gaveling the vote to the Senate. Democrats voted solidly in favor, but all but two Republicans voted against.

The articles of impeachment accuse Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress,” setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of the 45th president or convicting him and removing him from office.

The Senate, which has not held a trial of a president since 1868, will hold a trial with 100 senators as judges. A two-thirds majority of votes, or 67 votes, is necessary to convict Mr. Trump.

The articles of impeachment accuse Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress,” setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of the 45th president or convicting him and removing him from office.

The Senate, which has not held a trial of a president since 1868, will hold a trial with 100 senators as judges. A two-thirds majority of votes, or 67 votes, is necessary to convict Mr. Trump.

The articles of impeachment accuse Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress,” setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of the 45th president or convicting him and removing him from office.

The Senate, which has not held a trial of a president since 1868, will hold a trial with 100 senators as judges. A two-thirds majority of votes, or 67 votes, is necessary to convict Mr. Trump.

The articles of impeachment accuse Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress,” setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of the 45th president or convicting him and removing him from office.

The Senate, which has not held a trial of a president since 1868, will hold a trial with 100 senators as judges. A two-thirds majority of votes, or 67 votes, is necessary to convict Mr. Trump.

The articles of impeachment accuse Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress,” setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of the 45th president or convicting him and removing him from office.

The Senate, which has not held a trial of a president since 1868, will hold a trial with 100 senators as judges. A two-thirds majority of votes, or 67 votes, is necessary to convict Mr. Trump.

The articles of impeachment accuse Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress,” setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of the 45th president or convicting him and removing him from office.

The Senate, which has not held a trial of a president since 1868, will hold a trial with 100 senators as judges. A two-thirds majority of votes, or 67 votes, is necessary to convict Mr. Trump.

The articles of impeachment accuse Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress,” setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of the 45th president or convicting him and removing him from office.

The Senate, which has not held a trial of a president since 1868, will hold a trial with 100 senators as judges. A two-thirds majority of votes, or 67 votes, is necessary to convict Mr. Trump.

The articles of impeachment accuse Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress,” setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of the 45th president or convicting him and removing him from office.

The Senate, which has not held a trial of a president since 1868, will hold a trial with 100 senators as judges. A two-thirds majority of votes, or 67 votes, is necessary to convict Mr. Trump.

The articles of impeachment accuse Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress,” setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of the 45th president or convicting him and removing him from office.

The Senate, which has not held a trial of a president since 1868, will hold a trial with 100 senators as judges. A two-thirds majority of votes, or 67 votes, is necessary to convict Mr. Trump.

The articles of impeachment accuse Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress,” setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of the 45th president or convicting him and removing him from office.

The Senate, which has not held a trial of a president since 1868, will hold a trial with 100 senators as judges. A two-thirds majority of votes, or 67 votes, is necessary to convict Mr. Trump.

The articles of impeachment accuse Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress,” setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of the 45th president or convicting him and removing him from office.

The Senate, which has not held a trial of a president since 1868, will hold a trial with 100 senators as judges. A two-thirds majority of votes, or 67 votes, is necessary to convict Mr. Trump.

The articles of impeachment accuse Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress,” setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of the 45th president or convicting him and removing him from office.

The Senate, which has not held a trial of a president since 1868, will hold a trial with 100 senators as judges. A two-thirds majority of votes, or 67 votes, is necessary to convict Mr. Trump.

The articles of impeachment accuse Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress,” setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of the 45th president or convicting him and removing him from office.

The Senate, which has not held a trial of a president since 1868, will hold a trial with 100 senators as judges. A two-thirds majority of votes, or 67 votes, is necessary to convict Mr. Trump.

The articles of impeachment accuse Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress,” setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of the 45th president or convicting him and removing him from office.

The Senate, which has not held a trial of a president since 1868, will hold a trial with 100 senators as judges. A two-thirds majority of votes, or 67 votes, is necessary to convict Mr. Trump.

The articles of impeachment accuse Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress,” setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of the 45th president or convicting him and removing him from office.

The Senate, which has not held a trial of a president since 1868, will hold a trial with 100 senators as judges. A two-thirds majority of votes, or 67 votes, is necessary to convict Mr. Trump.

The articles of impeachment accuse Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress,” setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of the 45th president or convicting him and removing him from office.

The Senate, which has not held a trial of a president since 1868, will hold a trial with 100 senators as judges. A two-thirds majority of votes, or 67 votes, is necessary to convict Mr. Trump.

The articles of impeachment accuse Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress,” setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of the 45th president or convicting him and removing him from office.

The Senate, which has not held a trial of a president since 1868, will hold a trial with 100 senators as judges. A two-thirds majority of votes, or 67 votes, is necessary to convict Mr. Trump.

The articles of impeachment accuse Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress,” setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of the 45th president or convicting him and removing him from office.

The Senate, which has not held a trial of a president since 1868, will hold a trial with 100 senators as judges. A two-thirds majority of votes, or 67 votes, is necessary to convict Mr. Trump.

The articles of impeachment accuse Mr. Trump of “abuse of power” and “obstruction of Congress,” setting the stage for a historic Senate trial of the 45th president or convicting him and removing him from office.

The Senate, which has not held a trial of a president since 1868, will hold a trial with 100 senators as judges. A two-thirds majority of votes, or 67 votes, is necessary to convict Mr. Trump.