and was roughly told by the guard that it was for good. Appealing to the conductor, the boy begged him to be allowed on the train, but the conductor refused, saying it was too late. The boy was forced to wait for the next train, which was not expected until the following day.

The next day, the conductor told the boy that it was still too early for the train to leave. The boy was then given a chance to write a letter to his family, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.

The conductor then told the boy that he could not be allowed on the train, but that he could be allowed to remain on the platform until the train left. The boy was then given a chance to write another letter, which he did, expressing his desire to return home.